

UNIVERSITY OF WINDSOR ADMINISTRATION

Leddy Library Archives & Special Collections serves as the official repository for University of Windsor records of enduring legal or historical value. An entire series of our archival records is therefore devoted to the history of the University of Windsor. The responsibility to deposit such records lies with individual offices or academic units, so, unfortunately, the record in our possession is far from complete.

University administrative records are preserved by the archives so as to document the history of the institution and support its present-day operations. However, due to the sensitive or confidential nature of some records, access to certain files is restricted to relevant administrative personnel or those to whom they assign access. Please contact us for details of our holdings and any access restrictions.
